One-liner: Graded, cited peptide & hormone science feeding three revenue streams — topicals, digital guides, and print. Built, shipped and live.

THE MESSAGE TO SEND · WHATSAPP, 1:1, ATTACH MOU

Hi [Name] — worth putting this in front of you now, not later.

PEPHORMIA is a live, compliant peptide & hormone brand out of Sydney — graded, cited science feeding three revenue streams: topicals, digital guides, and print. Site, brand, products and content library are all shipped and live.

The concept is already validated in the US and developed markets. Peptide demand there has exploded — US search hit ~10M/month this year — and the DTC-content playbook we're running took brands like Grüns from launch to a ~A$1.8B exit in under three years. We're the compliant way onto that same wave: cosmetics + education, no prescriptions, ad-safe.

And the margins carry it: digital ~100%, cosmetics ~65% (A$25-38 a bottle, priced under The Ordinary and NIOD), print ~50%.

And 23-24 July is the turning point. The FDA's peptide hearing puts the entire category in front of the world in one week — we're positioned to capture that spike while everyone else scrambles.

Small private round — max 3 partners, 1% of the business per A$1,000. Story, moat and numbers: pephormia.com/invest/ · MOU attached. Worth a quick call before the 23rd?

Keeping this to a very short list.

THE OFFER AT A GLANCE

Stake	1% per A$1,000	Total offered	Max 25%
Partners	Maximum 3	Minimum ticket	5% (A$5,000)
Transparency	Weekly meetings	Exit	Fair value, after 6 months
Return	Growth in stake value	Structure	Converts to Pty Ltd equity

WHY NOW, WHY VALIDATED, WHY THE MARGINS HOLD

Turning point — 23-24 July: the FDA peptide hearing puts the category in front of the world in one week. We sell none of the compounds under review — only cosmetic topicals + education — so we capture the spike compliantly. If the vote restricts, the "what can I legally use?" demand only grows. We win either way.

Validated abroad: US peptide search ~10M/month this year; DTC-content brands like Grüns went launch → ~A$1.8B in under three years. We're the compliant local play on the same wave.

Margins: digital ~100% · cosmetics ~65% (A$25-38/bottle, priced under The Ordinary & NIOD) · print ~50%.

The moat: the only brand that grades & cites the science AND sells the products. Examine grades but sells nothing; The Ordinary/NIOD sell but grade nothing. We do both.

IF THEY ASK — YOUR ANSWERS

Why partners, not investors?

Private and small — capped at three, not a public raise. You get weekly transparency and a real seat, not passive capital. It converts to registered Pty Ltd equity when we proceed. Same upside, structured to stay clean and private.

Why not use your own capital?

I have — brand, site, products and content library are all built and live on my own money and work, behind a 20-year active ABN, with some held in reserve as buffer. 23–24 July is the turning point to scale, so I want one to three aligned partners to grow it with capital going into inventory and content, and their network working alongside mine. Not a rescue raise — a small round to meet the moment with more firepower than one person has.

Why only three partners?

Partners, not a crowd. Three keeps every stake meaningful, decisions fast, and the arrangement genuinely private. Three people truly in it beats twenty passengers.

What's my exit?

Fair value after six months, set by an independent valuer so neither side games it. Return is the growth in your stake, converting to registered equity at Pty Ltd. Six months, independent number, clean.

What if the FDA vote goes the other way?

It helps us. We sell none of the compounds under review. If they restrict, the search spike and the "what's legal to use?" question only grow — and we're the compliant answer. The traffic is the asset, not the ruling.

Why should I trust the numbers?

Every claim on the site is graded and cited to primary research — that's the whole brand. Market figures come from documented sources; unit economics are supplier-quoted costs against competitor retail you can check yourself. Honest numbers with the limits stated — that discipline is the moat.

Keep it clean: send 1:1, never a broadcast or group — this is a private offer to a maximum of three partners, not a public solicitation. Have a lawyer paper the MOU before money moves (this is not legal advice). · pephormia.com/invest/ · raj@artigellence.com · MOU on request.
